Excerpt: . . . 11 Grand Canyon Commission which detailed the sulfur dioxide emissions reduction milestone graph and a backstop emissions trading program to ensure attainment of that visibility improvement. On May 6 of this year, the EPA proposed a revision to the Regional Haze Rule that would include that Annex. The States who choose to implement a program under Section 309 of the Annex and the Regional Haze Program must submit their plans by December 31, 2003, not much more than a year from now. The work of the WRAP remains on schedule and will enable us to meet that deadline, and we intend to do that. The success of this process has been in no small measure a result of the contributions that EPA has made to the partnership and the willingness of Congress to fund that work, and we appreciate both. On a related note, in a recent decision from the U. S. Court of Appeals regarding the Regional Haze Rule, while the court rejected EPA's group BART determination, or best available retrofit technology application, it did reaffirm the States role in implementing the program. And the market-based Section 309 program right now remains a viable option under the Regional Haze Rule, perhaps now with even more regulatory certainty. Congressional multipollutant proposals and President Bush's Clear Skies Initiative also provide opportunities for flexibility for market-based reductions in air pollutants. As this process moves forward, it is important, however, to remember that a new national program can best serve the west if it preserves the consensus on the sulfur dioxide reductions which are attained within the WRAPs Annex. And, furthermore, it...
