Cusa agrees with the Venice Edition of Liechtenstein, which is believed to have been translated from an Arabic MS. This leads one to infer that Cusa derived the places of his stars also from the Arabic. There are some errors in the Catalogue which are readily explained on the supposition of confounding the Arabic characters. For example: --The latitude of Sirius is given as 0290 500 instead of 090 105, or the very probable error of confounding the o with the 0 . The latitude of the northern of the Aselli is given as 10 400 for 0 405, or a mistake of 0 i for Oz- . . The longitudes are those of Ptolemy increased by 01. The Epoch is not given in the above edition. but if it be 12 120 as asserted by Riccioli. then the amount of precession annually, or one degree in eighty-two years. Ptolemy probably observed α and β Tau as one star. Cusa gives both components, which appears to be the solitary observation to justify the title of his Catalogue. II. Micrometrical Measures of Double Stars. By George Knott, Esq. INTRODUCTION. I have the honour of presenting to the Royal Astronomical Society a short series of micrometrical measures of Double Stars, taken between the years 1860 and 1873, at my former residence, Woodcroft, Cuckfield. The Observatory, detached, at some little distance from the house, and commanding a good horizon view, stood at an elevation above...
